

Volunteers Wanted

Here's an opportunity for you to join a dedicated team of volunteers who care for grey seals.

Grey seals are among the rarer species of seals. They are confined to the North Atlantic, and about 40% of them live around the British coastline. Many of them breed on Norfolk beaches in the winter months (November to February).

FoHS wants to increase our team of seal wardens and welcomes new people. If you:

- have some time to spare
- are interested in wildlife
- like to be outdoors - even in the middle of winter
- are relatively mobile
- enjoy talking to people
- want to be part of a team, then volunteering as a seal warden with Friends of Horsey Seals could be right for you. This year we have teams wardening at Horsey and Winterton-on-Sea.

- to attend a training session approx 9am - 3pm (site visit included) in September or October
- to do a minimum of 6 wardening shifts of 2^{1/2} hours during the season (November - February)
- to honour the shifts you book using our flexible booking system
